Editorial and AI acknowledgement: AI assistance supported organizing and clarity during preparation. Human editors remain responsible for the content, examples, sources, wording, accessibility, and release decisions.

Accessibility note: This guide is prepared for accessible reading and practical use. Check heading hierarchy, alt text for figures, descriptive link text, keyboard access, and readable contrast. Automated checks do not establish conformance for every reader or technology.

The governing venue, publisher, or institutional requirements always take priority over this tracker.

Start Here

1. Choose your task: planning, source work, revision, or submission. Read the matching guide chapter and its worked example first.
2. Follow your assignment or venue requirements. This workbook does not replace a rubric, current submission rules, or required disclosures.
3. Printable edition: write in the outlined areas. Fillable edition: download and save a project-specific copy, then type in a form-capable PDF reader.
4. Save, close, and reopen your copy to confirm that entries persist. Fields follow page order and have descriptive labels. No reset script is included; keep a blank master.
5. Keep responses concise. Text fields have character limits and do not scroll; use a labelled continuation sheet for longer material. Check your saved or printed copy for hidden text.
6. A completed example is clearly marked fictional. Blank source and continuation pages contain no example data. Label QUOTE, PARAPHRASE, and MY ANALYSIS separately.
7. Keep sources, exact locators, limitations, revision decisions, and actual assistance records together. Do not invent a source, permission, interview, or completed check.

AI assisted with developing these prompts and verifying the PDF structure. The original publication and licence page is retained on page 2. This 1st Edition synchronizes the guide, workbook, and web lessons.
